INITIATIVES

WUCF-FM offers internship opportunities for students registered in the Radio-Television Program for the UCF College of Sciences. These opportunities provide training in board operations, production activities, and meet the student’s requirement for formal hands-on training. During the past year, WUCF-FM had two (2) student interns during the preceding year (September 1, 2014 to August 31, 2015). Interns working in the areas of production, administration, and marketing. WUCF-FM offers a broad level of training as the involvement is greater at our smaller station that is found with larger media operations. All students receive direct supervision and training from experienced broadcast professionals. These students worked at the station for 100 hours combined.

During the same period, WUCF-FM hired six (6) work-study students enrolled at UCF. We train and utilize work-study students for administrative, production, board-operations, and engineering positions. During this past year, WUCF-FM utilized four students in these capacities. The total number of work-study hours came to 1355.5.

In addition, WUCF-FM provides opportunities for volunteers who wish to learn various aspects of radio station operations. Some volunteers are university students and some volunteers are from within the community. During the past year, we had three (3) student volunteers. These students contributed to the marketing, promotions, and events element of the station. During this same period, WUCF-FM had two volunteers from the community who produced their own show for weekend broadcasts. One of these programs targeted the program content to the reggae listener community; this program ended this year as the volunteer resigned. As with the students, seasoned staff work closely with, train, and mentor volunteers to the various broadcasting practices, techniques, and operations that are needed to be successful at WUCF-FM or elsewhere in the industry.

In addition, we had fourteen (14) volunteers from the community during this period who contributed sixty-six and one half hours during fund drives to help the station raise funds needed for operations.
